

Akihabara・Ochanomizu

Japan's No.1 Electric City : neon lights and specialized stores flourish in the area.

Akihabara, lit by neon, is the electric city representing Japan. Everything is available here as long as it has something to do with electricity, even that little IC chip you've been looking for. Now that PCs are everywhere, families also shop here on their days off. Take a slow walk to see the historical architecture of Yushima Seido and Nicholai-do, and then you'll reach the Musical Instrument Area and the Kanda Second-hand Book Area. From students to senior citizens, this neighborhood is loved by all generations because of the individual specialties of each shop.
